

Romans in Britain

During the first part of the Spring Term, Class 3 have been learning about the Roman invasion of Britain and its impact on daily life for the Celts. To conclude our learning, we made models of Roman catapults – this was tricky but the children showed great dexterity with junior hacksaws plus great determination to finish the task!

Then, on Friday 10th February, we visited the Corinium Museum in Cirencester to find out more about how the Romans contributed to changes in everyday life in Britain. The children had a fabulous day, with comments ranging from “How much blood did gladiators lose?” to “This is the best day ever!” The cuddly giraffe was a particular favourite with some!

The children were an absolute credit to the school, showing curiosity and a willingness to learn and engage in the activities and information in the galleries.
